Thanks, Dad

I found this little poem today,
While I was at the store,
It says, Dad, you are special and
I love you more and more.

It carries untold gratitude,
For everything you have done,
And says, of all the Dads I know,
You are the finest one.

It thanks you Dad for taking time,
When I am feeling blue,
To help me understand why things,
May happen as they do.

You heal the very biggest hurts,
By knowing what to say,
For in your arms the hurting stops,
And pain just goes away.

And though I may not know too much,
One thing I clearly see,
When God made out His list of Dads,
The best, he gave to me.
